Pharmacists urged to renew registration online and on time

The Pharmacy Board of Australia today urged pharmacists whose registration expires on 30 November to renew online and on time.

Board Chair Stephen Marty said the board was encouraged by the renewal response already received from the 24,000 pharmacists due to renew by 30 November 2011. With just over two weeks to go before the 30 November registration expiry date, more than 55 percent of pharmacists due to renew have done so.

“It is fantastic that many pharmacists due to renew have heeded calls to apply early and I would encourage all in the profession to use the online service for quick and easy renewal,” Mr Marty said.

Pharmacists who renewed their registration by 30 June 2011 were given valid registration for five months and must renew again by 30 November. The registration renewal cycle for all pharmacists in Australia is now aligned and annual registration renewal will be due by 30 November.

Mr Marty urged pharmacists to check their contact details and update them if necessary to receive regular reminders from the board and Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (AHPRA).

“In the National Scheme, individual practitioners are responsible for renewing their registration on time. The job of the Pharmacy Board of Australia – with AHPRA – is to make this as simple and straightforward as possible,” he said.

Mr Marty encouraged pharmacists to provide AHPRA with their email address to allow for easy and efficient direct communication about renewal.

“Pharmacists should watch for the reminders to renew registration as confirmation that they can renew online using their unique User ID which is included in all AHPRA correspondence,” he said.

“I urge anyone due to renew by 30 November who has not yet done so to act quickly as applications received after the registration expiry date will incur a late payment fee.”

The late payment fee will apply to practitioners who apply to renew during the one month late period outlined in the National Law. It will be payable in addition to the annual renewal fee.

Mr Marty reminded the profession that there were significant consequences for individual pharmacists who do not renew on time in the National Scheme.

Under the National Law, pharmacists who do not renew registration within one month of their registration expiry date must be removed from the National Register of Pharmacists. Their registration will lapse and they will not be able to practise in Australia until a new application is approved.

“Neither the board nor AHPRA have any discretion about this so our advice is clear – renew on time. The quickest and easiest way to do this is online,” Mr Marty said.

There are some simple steps pharmacists can follow for straightforward and easy renewal of registration:

1. Check your contact details – make sure your contact details, including email and mobile telephone, are correct and current. This will allow AHPRA to send you renewal reminders and to contact you easily. Set email accounts to receive information from the board and AHPRA.
2. Check your registration expiry date – pharmacists can view their expiry date on the National Register of Pharmacists, accessible at www.pharmacyboard.gov.au and enter their last name and profession to search.
3. Watch for the reminder to renew registration – reminders to renew registration will be sent to individual pharmacists at regular intervals before registration expires. Pharmacists should look out for these reminders as confirmation that they can renew online. Pharmacists can also mail their renewal application to AHPRA, GPO Box 9958, in their capital city. Pharmacists whose intention is to not renew registration should tick the box on the registration renewal form acknowledging this and return the form to AHPRA. Renewal reminders will stop being sent to you after your request has been processed.

Pharmacists can check that their application has been received via the online receipt service at Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency - Renewal Received Confirmation. Pharmacists whose application to renew registration has been received can practise while their application is being processed. The listing on the National Register of Pharmacists is evidence for employers that a pharmacist is registered, even if their registration expiry date has passed. Alternatively, pharmacists can print off a copy of their registration certificate using AHPRA’s online services at www.ahpra.gov.au.

Failure to renew:

Pharmacists who forget to renew their registration by 30 November 2011, or within the following one month late period ending 31 December 2011, can apply to AHPRA for a fast-track application for registration. These pharmacists should note that they are not able to practise in their profession until their fast-track registration application has been processed and approved.
